Workshop - 8th of MARCH

This workshop is designed in order to educate young people on the meaning and importance of the International Women's day, as our findings show that the new generations of young people are confused with the different messages they get in regards to March 8th.

The main aim of the workshop is to educate the participants on the historical facts concerning the establishment of the International Women's day and its development through history/herstory, while at the same time opening the floor for discussion about today's position of women in the society.

The workshop will raise several questions and topics:

What is 8th of March?

What are the main figures and what did they fought for?,

Workers rights and equal pay,

Women's suffrage through time,

How did we celebrate 8th of March?

What is the situation nowadays?
