What is the Audit indicator?

Auditor commitment to assessing gender mainstreaming is essential for a balanced judgement of risks related to gender equality in the Organization’s work. Current experience is that gender-mainstreaming issues are not well understood but can be addressed through awareness raising and capacity-building. However, the dearth of audit community information on how to ‘genderise’ audits is a constraint to developing meaningful assessments of how well the Organization is managing risks to its gender mandate. Where there is a clear gender link e.g. in input distribution, the auditor can evaluate how well the internal controls are functioning and identify residual risks. Where the gender link is not so apparent e.g. procurement, or internal controls are difficult to decipher e.g. advocacy, there are limited tools available to provide guidance to the auditor.

How to use this performance indicator

Audit work plans are primarily risk-based to conform to the International Standards for Professional Practice of Internal Auditing, adopted by the Internal Audit Services of the UN Organizations. This requires that the internal audit services consider all significant entity risks in prioritizing their annual or multi-year audit work programmes.

Work planning documentation supporting the preparation of annual or multi-year audit work programmes record the extent to which the risks related to the achievement of gender equality and the empowerment of women in the organization’s programmes are being managed. This preparatory analysis may indicate the need for including (in the audit work programmes) stand-alone audits of how the risks are managed across the organization, or the incorporation of coverage in broader scoped programme or project audits. Alternatively, the analysis may indicate, without the need for additional audit testing, that the risks are adequately managed.

For departments of the Secretariat a common response for reporting on this Performance Indicator will be provided by OIOS to all Secretariat Focal Points prior to the reporting deadline.

How to approach requirements

To approach the requirements, organizations should organize consultation with the gender focal point/department on risks related to gender equality and the empowerment of women, as part of the risk-based audit annual planning cycle.

How to meet requirements

To meet the requirements, organizations should have developed tools for auditing gender equality and the empowerment of women related issues (e.g. policy compliance, quality of reporting etc.) and apply these as appropriate in all relevant audit phases.

How to exceed requirements

To exceed requirements, the internal audit service of the organization should systematically present gender equality findings in their annual report. Furthermore, internal audit services should carry out a targeted audit engagement concerning gender equality and the empowerment of women covering headquarters as well as select field offices (for organizations with field presence) at least once every five years. The targeted audit engagement would need to be designed bearing the issues and risks identified in regular audit activities of the organization as well as other relevant oversight activities implemented by the organization (e.g. evaluations, reviews).

Example: Meeting Requirements

At the World Health Organisation (WHO), gender, equity and human rights (GER) are systematically taken into consideration in independent risk audit assessment planning since 2014, with consultation with the GER team when required. “Gender, Equity and Human Rights” budget centre is included as a separate auditable unit in the audit universe.
It is standard procedure to include specific audit tests on Gender, Equity and Human Rights related issues as part of the performance area in integrated audits. In 2017, the IOS methodology for GER review was revised in consultation with the GER team. In 2017, the GER tests were expanded from three to five areas covering seven data sets (policies/strategies, guidelines/tools, workplans, health information systems, publications, communication materials, and donor reports). In 2017 an audit step was added in the operational audits to specifically mention the review of “gender” in the recruitment process. The Office of Internal Oversight Services had discussions with staff / gender focal points at different levels of the organization (Headquarters, Regional Offices and a selection of Country Offices) in relation to gender equality and the empowerment of women and discussions on risks related to gender equality and the empowerment of women.

Example: Exceeding Requirements

The World Food Programme (WFP) Office of the Inspector General (OIGA) consults with WFP’s Gender Office and senior management during the annual risk assessment exercise to identify key risks related to gender in WFP’s operations and processes. OIGA includes gender in engagement specific risk assessments. OIGA, in collaboration with the Gender Office, also undertook a Participatory Gender Audit (PGA) in 2016 covering one Headquarters division (Human Resources), one Regional Bureau (Cairo), one Liaison Office (Amman) and two country offices (Sudan and Jordan). The results of the audit have informed engagement-level risk assessments for audit planning purposes.

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) of the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) has a gender focal point responsible for ensuring that gender-related risks are duly considered in all its internal audit activities. Consultation with FAO’s Gender Team takes place every year as part of OIG’s annual planning process, and to update country office standard audit programmes as necessary. These audit programmes include a standard section related to gender mainstreaming. The findings of each audit are included in individual country reports. In addition, a summary of issues is included in a periodic capping report and presented to senior management. For corporate performance audits, gender related risks are identified and assessed in all engagements at audit planning stage and, where considered relevant, included in the audit scope. Moreover, OIG’s annual activity report includes a section that summarizes all OIG’s gender-related activities in the year. OIG also ensures that all of its staff receive sufficient trainings and sensitization in the area of gender and are kept aware of relevant corporate initiatives. Specifically, all OIG staff must complete UN WOMEN’s basic gender training for UN staff. In addition, workshops with FAO’s Gender Team are organized periodically. Furthermore, a divisional newsletter which is disseminated to OIG staff on a quarterly basis includes regular articles on gender.

The Internal Audit of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) conducted a GEM audit in 2017 with the objective of providing to the ITU Secretary-General a reasonable assurance that there is adequate governance and risk management with respect to GEM, and that the internal controls are effective for the implementation of GEM policy and activities. ITU Internal Audit includes (since Q3_2017) the gender considerations of the area/process being audited as one of the audit objectives at each audit engagement level.

Additional Points

UNRIAS, recognizing the lack of tools available to provide guidance to auditors, set up a Gender Interest Group at its September 2016 meeting to facilitate knowledge sharing, peer review and the development of tools and methodologies.
