There are nearly 500 GFPs across the System. Various General Assembly resolutions such as A/76/142 call upon the entities across the United Nations system to significantly increase their efforts towards achieving the goal of 50/50 gender balance through continuing to collaborate with UN-Women and with the active support of system-wide gender focal points. The functions and responsibilities of Gender Focal Points are outlined by the Secretary-General’s Bulletin on Terms of Reference for Gender Focal Points (ST/SGB/2023/3). | - The main role of UN Gender Focal Points is to enhance gender parity and create enabling working environments. As per the SGB/2023/3, the head of an entity has the overall responsibility for the achievement of gender parity in the entity concerned, including the responsibility of ensuring that the entity has a Gender Focal Point and at least one alternate. Gender Focal Points are recommended to be appointed from among staff at the P4 level and above. Normally 20 percent of their official work time should be dedicated to serving the duties. Functions and responsibilities include:
  - To support the head of their entity in achieving gender balance and addressing gender-based workplace issues;
  - To collaborate with the head of entity, human resources, senior management, and staff to monitor and report on the progress and challenges of gender balance goals in their entity;
  - To provide information and guidance to staff on the avenues for addressing situations of gender-based workplace concerns, including harassment, sexual harassment, discrimination, and abuse of power;

This resolution requests all UN entities to ensure that gender specialist have resources for adequate training, access to information, and stable resources. | - The focal points promote and report on the progress of gender mainstreaming within their entities. They also support the UN System’s collective efforts to achieve gender equality and the empowerment of women using a flexible and dedicated approach.
The work of the focal points covers 17 performance indicators of the UN-SWAP (including an indicator on Gender Parity PI 4.3. “Gender Parity in staffing is achieved”).
The UN-SWAP requires entities to designate focal points at the P4 or equivalent level or above. These Focal Points have written terms of reference and they allocate at least 20 percent of their time to their functions. |
